Alcorn, lke's Choice, New Head Of GOP

Hartford Lawyer Will Succeed Hall As Chairman Feb. 1

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22 (A)-H. Meade Alcorn Jr., red-haired Hartford, Conn., lawyer and a subscriber to President Eisenhower's 'modern Republicanism," today was unanimously elected chairman of the Republican National Committee.

Shortly before the vote the President told a subcommittee that Alcorn was his choice. Once that word was given the full committee, whatever support there was for other candidates never came into the open.

Some Wanted Westerner

Some conservative members and a group preferring a Westerner had hoped the President would give the committee more leeway in making a choice by saying he would approve any one of two or more men. As leader of the party, Eisenhower exercised his prerogative of expressing a preference.

Alcorn will take over the chairmanship Feb. 1. He will succeed Leonard W. Hall, New York, who formally resigned today. Hall, given a gold medal by his associates, will go on a long vacation Then he is expected to be given a federal appointment. He also may run for the GOP gubernatorial nomination in New York next

The board in its citation stated that Morrissey was convicted in Circuit Court on January 18 of selling beer after hours and received a one-year suspended sentence in the House of Correction.

The board also announced that the regulation pertaining to licensed premises having a clear view of the interior of their es tablishments from the streets will be strictly enforced. Walter C. Capper, board chairman, said that the two board inspectors have been instructed to check each of the more than places in the county to see there are any curtains, parti ons or any other materials over ont windows which prevent a clear view into the premises.

Those places which fail to abide by the regulation will be dealt with at time for renew al of licenses in April, the board

County Gets Share Of Racing Taxes

A check has been received by the Allegany County Board of Commissioners from the state in which a total of $28,885.46 is allocated to the county and incorporated communities from horse racing taxes in Maryland.

Allegany County will receive $11,894.35 of the total while Cumberland will get $12,153; Frost burg, $2,217.80; Westernport, $1, 106.66; Lonaconing, $738.28; Luke, $264.47; Midland, $286.75; Barton

The board also received a let ter from Delegate Lester B Reed, along with a copy of House Bill 95 which has been drawn up by Delegate George F. S. Jeffrey, in which Reed asks the commissioners for their views on the measure. Delegate Jeffrey's bill would exempt Allegany County residents who are 65 years of age or over from payment of property taxes on their homes if heir monthly income is less than $100. The exemption would be given to residents of at least

Pickets Halt Road Project

Pickets appeared on the west side of Polish Mountain yesterday morning as workers began to clear the right of way for the relocation of Route 40. A spokesman for the men said it was "definitely not an AFL strike."

An official of the Central Pennsylvania Quarry and Stripping Corporation, Hazelton, Pa., contractor for the $1,594,230.20 project, said the stoppage resulted from a dispute with AFL Building Trades unions.

The company official said his firm has a contract with the Inited Construction Workers, a District 50, UMW affiliate.

Harry L. Hickle, president of the Building Trades Council here, said the job is being picketed to 'put local men on local jobs,' and is not an AFL dispute.

He said the some 60 men who set up the picket line carried signs reading "Allegany County Men Seeking Jobs" or "Mary land Jobs for Maryland Men.' Union officials predicted about 100 men will be on the picket line

Hickle said local AFL officials told the company its District 50 union "is as good as ours" and that the issue is jobs for local men. He added that the contract

Council Gives Permission For Town Carnival

Piedmont Plans Street Affair

PIEDMONT - Tri-Towns Fire Company 1, will hold a street carnival for two weeks in June. he members of the Fire Comany will hold a carnival the week of June 3-8 and the Auxilary will hold theirs the following week, June 10-15.

They were granted permission to hold the carnivals in the vicinity of the fire house on Lyons Street at the meeting of Mayor Rodney Baker and City Council Monday evening.

Raymond Lee, president of the Fire Company, and Theodore Combs also requested that the city build a new fire house for the company as the present one is in a deplorable condition.

Mayor Baker informed the fire company representatives that the town is not financially able to comply with their wishes. The council decided that Arnold DAVID DE VORE Clark, a local contractor, be engaged to make an inspection of of putting the building in good here.

Around The World •Faster And Faster

Jules Verne was scoffed at as a wild and impractical dreamer when he wrote his "Around the World in Eighty Days." But his dreams were not nearly wild enough.

The trip has been getting shorter ever since he wrote his story. Few travelers today are willing to spend 80 days on such a journey. It is easy to make it in eight. And three Air Force B52 Stratofortresses did it non-stop in 45 hours and 19 minutes. This feat caused no excitement and received only perfunctory notice. The world was not nearly so impressed by the incredible achievement of these Air Force fliers as it was when Nellie Bly succeeded in racing around the world in 72 days to break Jules Verne's fictional Earth satellites and guided missiles, already on the drawing boards, may soon make a man who circled the globe in 45 hours resemble an ancient slowpoke. Of course, this was an impressive demonstration that the reach and striking power of the modern U.S. Air Force extends to every corner of the globe. But any feeling of security is tempered by the knowledge that Soviet Russia has a large and growing fleet of long range bombers equally capable of reaching any corner of the American continent.

Already predictions that piloted aircraft is on the way out, to be superseded by guided missiles as military weapons, are common. When a guided missile that can be directed to a target thousands of miles distant becomes available, planes, whatever their speed, will be relegated to a secondary role in defense.

Bridges In Hawaii

Sometime ago, I wrote a piece on the danger to Hawaiian statehood if Harry Bridges continued to control those outposts of American defenses. I received many letters complaining that I was unfair to the Hawaiians, to Americans who lived there, to newspapers and radio stations, etc., etc. So I have read carefully the transcript of the hearings in Honolulu of the Senate Subcommittee on Internal Security. This Committee went out to Honolulu to take testimony on the spot and was greeted by a strike, the object of which was to show that Harry Bridges is more powerful than a Senate Committee.

It is an interesting record, with the usual number of Fifth Amendment witnesses and the usual attacks on the good-will and fairness of the Committee. I found very significant the testimony of Benjamin Franklin Dillingham, who was born in Honolulu and has lived there all his life and has held public office in the Territory as well as engaging in private business.

Dillingham made the point:

. . we depend upon shipping for virtually all our basic needs of life here. Outside of airmail and a few commodities that can be brought in by air, we have no trucking service, we have no railroad service to fall back on, to relate us, to tie us to other communities of the United States, we are dependent upon ships. So when the shipping is cut off, we're not only denied access to the mainland for the sale of our products we produce here and depend upon for a livelihood, but we are denied an opportunity to receive our food, our clothing, our necessary supplies."

Then he added:

"And when you realize, and as I say, except for the military, which is very substantial to be sure, but it is not by any means our staff of life, you might say, when you realize that the shipping and the pineapple and the sugar industries are subject to the whim, regardless of contract or any kind of obligation, subject to the whim of one man, you will understand the position this community is in every day, every week, every month of every year."

It is a frightening picture if true and as one reads the testimony it is obvious that Dillingham's statement must be true, particularly as one reads the evidence of union lawyers who seem to be among the most obstreperous witnesses ever to have appeared before any Congressional committee. It must have been a trying experience for all parties concerned, but the over-all picture is one of an insolent acceptance of the authority of a feared master.

The question that naturally arises here is whether the control of the principal unions of Hawaii by Harry Bridges is in the best interests of the United States. The volume of testimony taken by the Internal Security Subcommittee is large and it leads to the conclusion that something has gone wrong on those beautiful islands that can no longer be covered up.

If the people of Hawaii have no way of getting rid of Bridges and his particular form of unionism, then they cannot expect a favorable response from Congress on their desire for statehood. The argument that conditions are no worse there than on the American mainland does not hold. It is Hawaii that seeks statehood. It cannot be ignored that even public officials went to a testimonial dinner in honor of a man convicted under the Smith Act whose case is

The testimony is not clear as to how many went but it looked as though there was approval of Jack Hall's general position and while it is true that until a man has had all the benefits of due process up to the Supreme Court of the United States, there is the possibility that he might be regarded as not yet convicted, it is also true that the United States is in a precarious position, requiring a budget of $71,000,000,000 a preponderant part of which goes for the national defense. And that influences our thinking on many subjects.

Those Americans who prefer the enemy and support his cause cannot expect much friendship or enthusiasm from those Americans who anticipate that their young sons may be called to war because of cable enmity of Soviet Russia for the United States. Preparedness and taxes affect us all emotion-

> "Perhaps not," Humphrey corrected, "but at least three to four billion."

Is Tight Money Right?

Because the President has leaned so heavily on the Secretary of the Treasury, and because Humphrey's advice has been so unequivocally accepted on all economic matters in the past, the current difference between the Treasury and the White House is far more significant than what the politicos have labeled it -'the first break in the Eisen-"They've got to cut out all this hower team."

Basically it involves the question of tight money and the New Deal theory of high government spending to maintain prosperity. Humphrey believes in tight money, doesn't believe in pumppriming. Some of those around the White House disagree.

At the moment they have Ike's ear. Twice Eisenhower, worried over high interest rates and restricted credit, has talked to his Secretary of the Treasury and asked in effect: "Are you sure, George, this policy of tight money is right?"

Hmphrey described one of these conversations to Republican leaders on Capitol Hill, in which he said he told the President in vigorous, unvarnished language just how he felt. Humphrey reported that Ike smiled and said nothing. Humphrey even told GOP leaders that he was prepared to come before the Senate Appropriations Committee and testify just what could be cut in the Eisenhower budget.

Under the rules governing every Administration this amounts to revolt. It is the law of the White House, whether Republican or Democrat, that a Cabinet officer can object to a budget figure as much as he likes inside the family. But once the figure has been set by the Budget Bureau, the argument stops. From that point on, the President's official family stands firmly together. They do not argue in public.

Secretary Humphrey violated

Had he violated it under Truman he would have been fired the next day. Truman fired Henry Wallace and Louis Johnson when they differed with Administration policy. Roosevelt let some of his Cabinet officers differ with each other. But he never let them differ with him - or with the budget - publicly.

with the officially fixed budget of the President. He has done it publicly and he has indicated that he will keep on doing it. This is the biggest economic and personnel problem facing the President at the start of his new

Merry-Go-Round

Pat Nixon, the Vice President's wife, wore her famous cloth coat to the last Inauguration. But this year she had a fitted black fur coat made of Afghanistan lamb pelts given by the Afghanistan government, also a white ermine stole; besides which, the Vice President gave Pat a custommade mink stole for Christmas. It's a long way back to 1952. In their two weeks at the Bangkok Constitution Fair in Thailand,

Benny Goodman and his band played American jazz to an estimated audience of over a million people assembled outdoors. Frank Elkins, publicity man for the Office of International Trade Fairs, points out that if Goodman had performed indoors in Bangkok's largest theatre, seating 1,000, it would have taken three years, playing seven nights a week, to reach a million people.

Congresswoman Edith Green of Oregon made this comment when informed that President Eisenhower had omitted funds for continuing the construction of John Day Dam from his 1958 budget: "Sherman Adams hasn't informed the President about the results of the Washington-Oregon elections.

Gas Lobby Stirs

A natural gas bill, recommended by Ike in his budget message, will have tougher sledding in the new Congress. This is because 31 Congressmen who last year voted for the Harris-Fulbright Act did not return to the 85th Congress. Most of them were voted out of office last Novem-

The recent price increases by major oil companies will also create problems for a natural gas bill. For this is regarded as an effort to profit from the Suez Canal oil shortage, and will be cited as a prime example of why federal control of oil and gas producers is needed.

On the other hand, the big utilities which distribute natural gas are now huddling with the pipeline operators in the hope of reaching a compromise on a new gas bill. Last year most distributors opposed the Harris-Fulbright Act. This year, they may compromise with producers and pipeline operators and throw their support behind a new natural gas bill, thus helping the chances of passage.

colon. A "thrifty" colon is one that, instead of retaining moisture as it should, does the opposite: robs the colon of so much moisture that its contents become dehydrated, so dry that they block the bowel; so shrunken that they fail to excite or stimulate the urge to purge that propels and expels waste from your body.

TO REGAIN NORMAL REGU-LARITY two things are necessary. First, the dry, shrunken contents of your colon which now block your bowel must be re-moistened. Second, bulk must be brought to your colon to S-T-R-E-T-C-H STIMULATE it
